

KVHA News – Team & Coaching Announcements Begin for 2018-2019 Hockey Season

Kent Valley Ice Centre, Kent, WA., Tuesday, April 16, 2018 - Kent Valley Hockey Association (KVHA) has begun making its coaching announcements for the 2018-19 season. We are pleased to begin with the announcement of Jeff Ferguson as Head Coach for the 16U Selects.

Coach Ferguson played all his youth hockey locally before playing juniors and ultimately moving into refereeing at the junior and semi-professional levels. He began coaching at the age of 20, while continuing to play in local men's leagues and started his own team in the former Cascade Hockey League. Coach Ferguson enjoyed a 15-year career in law enforcement, which included leadership and management positions in patrol as well as the CDU and SWAT teams, investigations and major collision investigation. He subsequently went into the private sector, managing Microsoft's global security operations center overseeing 7 global security management centers as well as Microsoft's headquarters and executive protection. He has continued his career in team building, strategizing and currently manages over 400 people with the world's largest elevator company, new installation department, managing the installation of the largest projects on the west coast of the United States - primarily in Seattle and Bellevue areas - which are currently the fastest growing population centers in the United States with the most high-rise crane projects in the world.

Except for one year spent with SnoKing Hockey Association, Jeff has been coaching with Kent Valley for the past ten years, where he has had "the humble pleasure of winning many league and tournament championships along the way, while forging many great long-term relationships with Kent Valley players and families and the local hockey community in the process."
